Nothing was given out for publication the hoard was closted with Andrew G Pierce, Andrew G Pierce, Joseph F knowles, Madly U Adems and Benjamin Wilcox, more than in hour and a naif this afternoon at the office of Andrew G. Pierce | Every mill in the city except those which are ranning was represented. At the close of the interview it was stated that nothing in regard to what was done would be given out for publication.

Mr Barry of the board stated that the board had now been given a complete standpoint of both purtics. The next move on the part of the board is for the members to compare notes. He could not say whether any more conferences will be held with either side for the present, or whether the board, upon consideration, would deem them necessary or advisable. It may be that the board will see its way clear to make a priposition to the parties for settlement which both will agree is fair.

After the interview with the mill men Mr Barry held another conversation with the labor leaders. Nothing that could in any way be construed as an invitation to either side to meet the other was made at dither conference by the board. The board will be received an unusual number of applications for assistance.

Ray, yard master of the Grand Trunk railroad and located at Gorham, N H., who was run over by a train on September 24th, and died Wednesday, arrived in the city last evening. They were accompanied by his wife and four children, his mother and Mesers. I. H Plude, of Gorham, N H., and P N. Murphy, of Portland, rail-road men. Mr Ray was 47 years, 11 months and 17 days of age. The funeral services will be held this afternoon at o'clock at East Hampden, at the residence of his mother, Mrs Roxica Ray.

Friends are invited. The storm caused a postponement of the excursion to Katabdin Iron Works by the young people of the Methodian churches. It has been decided to make the trip Saturday, October 6th. The schools are then closed, giving the scholars a chance to go and making it possible for family parties to be more easily arranged. The weather is likely to be some settled by that time and a large party may be expected to go for a Satur Notwithstanding the storm about forty people went yesterday. The tickets issued for October 4th will be good October 6th.

A little incident happened at Bar Harbor this summer which proves the well known fact that all are not ladles and gentlemen who wear fine clothes A very old and highly respected lady thought one day that she would like to visit the shore, as she had not been there for a long time and it would probably be her last visit. It was a vory warm day, and when about to return home she found her strength was failing and she would be obliged to go the nearest way which happened to be across a well kept iwn She saw a man opproaching, and was ahout to ask if he had any objection to her crossing there, as she was faint when he accosted her with "Olda t you know that this was private property' She told him that she did know it, but as she was eighty-three years eld, and very trend there has hender he would allow she was eighty-three years old, and very tired, that she thought he would allow her to pas that way But he objected to her doing so, and said that if he was eighty-three years old be should know enough to keep off other people's land Piacataquis

MAN MAY YET FLY andeful Rirdika Machine Construc

Can a man fly Learned professors of the sciences of permantics agree that he must and a formidable communition of expects appointed by the German government to invostigate into the pos-sibilities of serial mayigation have final ly and decisively and officially said that it is impossible. Still an ingenious and observant German of the name of Otto Lilienthal after a long series of experi-ments and in the face of the decisions of the current scientists, has succeeded in proving that a clever man can fly and dly for considerable distances too

Professor Labenthal like most men who have solved difficult problems has gone clear away from the principles to which other men have found limitations When he decided to fly, in other words, be left the possibilities afforded by the balloon entirely out of his calculations Balloons said he are crude affairs dan gerous, not to be depended upon non durigible and clumsy—There is nothing n nature built upon the principle of the balloon yet there are things in na-ture which can fly and fly much better then the best bellooms. Those things are birds. To the birds, then I will go for the model of my flying machine. And to the bridgh bework

from these same birds it was that

From these same birds it was that

Profesor Lilianthal learned the true punciples of aerial invegation, which principles he has succeeded to a degree n ad name to the uses of man. He first in ad spinig to the uses of man. He first learned that it is the concave shape of a bird's wing that enables it to soar, ris ing or falling ag will without insicular exection in the teeth of a high wind. Then he learned that a bird's wing bones are constructed similarly to those In a man s arm. Knowing these things he built his flying machine, or to be more correct, his soaring machine. He made for himself of light but impervi ous cotton cloth and split willow wands two immense wings 28 feet from tip to tip, and a practicable if not highly or namental radder or tail

He preserved in their construction as nearly as possible the form of a bird a wings and tail, increasing the parabolic wings and this, increasing the parabolic ourse of the bird's wings to the exact proportionate degree for his larger ones. These wings and the tail, weighing in all only 35 pounds, are so constructed as to fold up like the wings of a hat. Having completed them, the professor adjusted them to his arms, took a run along a billion and calculated cond. along a hilltop and calmly and confi dently jumped over the side, spread ing his wings as he did so. He soured some distance and alighted in safety and comfort He repeated his experi-ment many, many times, learning how to control his apparatus, how to change direction, how to rise or descend at will He improved his wings and tail and kept on practicing until now he can soar for several hundred yards, rise to a much greater height than he started from and fulfill most of the functions of from and fulfill mest of the functions of a big bird, save only that of propolling himself in still air and starting his flight from level ground. These two things a man is not strong enough to do, the bird possessing fauch greater strength for its size and weight than the most musoular man. But what Professor Liliential lacks in istrength he has made up in ingenuity, for he has now edustracted a little motor, operated by carbonic acid gas, which, while it adds scarcely anything to the weight of his flying apparatus, as empable of developscarcery mytring to the weight of his flying apparatus, as empable of develop-ing continuously two horsepower, or more than enough energy to work the wings. Indeed in the first trial the lit-tle motor developed ton much strength the motor developed ton much strength, and broke the wings, putting in stop to further experiments for the time.

If Professor Liliential succeeds in perfecting the great invention, the practicability of which he him direndy demicrostrated, and in molting arrial navigation on the shaple principles favored by the birds safe for mankind, howill have achieved a included by the principles of the safe for mankind, howill have achieved a included by the principle of the safe for mankind, howill have achieved a included by the principle of the safe for have achieved a notable triumph over the wonderful forces of nature as well Tiver Complaint

EDUCATION IN CHIMA How Knowledge Is Prize

the Flowery Hidgedom.

In no country is education more highly esteemed than in China. The child of the working man, as a rule cannot hope to get more than a mere smattering. But scattered through the country are numberless families the members of which for generation after generation are always students, and from whom, as a rule, the official come They have no knowledge of any business or trade. They corre spond very closely to what are, or used to be, called gentlemen in Eng land and preserve their position with great tenacity, even when hard press ed by poverty Rich parvenues as a matter of course engage tutors for their chil dren, and in the humblest ranks of life occasionally parents will stint themselves to give an opportunity to some son who has shown marked in telligence at the village school But an equality with those to whom learning is a hereditary profession The cultivation and intellectual dis cipline prevailing in such families give their members a marked advan tage over those who get no help of the kind at home, and who must, therefore, depend entirely on what they learn from their paid teachers The orthodox scheme of education is entirely concerned with the an cient literature of China The orig mal works which occupy the stu dent sattention were for the most part written before the literature of erther Greece or Rome had reached its prime But there are commenta tors belonging to later periods who must also be perused with diligence China has not seen an influx of new races such as have overrun Europe since the days of our classical authors, but still from mere lapse of time the language of the country has greatly changed and the child be ginning his studies cannot without explanation understand a single seq tence even if he has learned to read the words of the lesson which he has before him The student makes him self acquainted as thoroughly as pos sible with these classical works. The more he can quote of them the bet ter but he must master the matter contained in them as well He must get to know the different readings and different interpretations of disputed passages, and finally he practices himself in prose and verse composition In prose he carefully preserves the ancient phraseology over admitting modern everds though there are certain technical ities of style which will prevent his productions from being an exact imi tation of the ancient literature His the old time poets. Tree Wines One of the most curious industries

m the world is the business of min ing for coffin planks which is car ried on in upper longum a portion of the French possessions in south eastern Asia In a certain district in this province there exists a great un derground deposit of logs which were probably the trunks of trees engulfed by an earthquake or some other convulsion of nature at a comparatively recent period The tices are a species of pine known to the natives and also to some exten to Laropean commerce, as nam hou. The wood is almost im per shable and has the quality, er ther through its nature or as the result of its sojourn underground of resisting decay from damp. This quality makes it particularly value able for the manufacture of coffins and for this purpose it is largely a ported to Europe
